Rice Promotes Health Plan Campaign: State Senator Ronald Rice (D-Newark), is making people aware of the recently organized Garden State Health Plan, the state operated Health Maintenance Organization (HMO) designed to make health care for Medicaid beneficiaries more accessible. The new program is being offered as an alternative to Medicaid and is expected to deliver more personalized medical care to patients. Rice held a public meeting on May 5 to brief city officials and health professionals on the plan. — NEWARK

Connors Throws Congressional Hat in Ring: Brian Connors, a newcomer to politics, has announced his candidacy for the US Congress in the 10th District opposing Donald Payne. Connors' background consists of considerable business experience. He is 38-years-old, is a member of the Screen Actors Guild and Actors' Equity Association, and is a national account manager with the Kreller Consulting Group. — ELIZABETH

Haney Links Racism, Violence to Reagan-Bush Era: Bob Haney, Democratic candidate for Congress in New Jersey's 13th District accused former President Ronald Reagan and President George Bush of "playing the people off against each other," during a recent rally of concerned citizens on the steps of the Hudson County Courthouse. "We should unite and fight Washington to save our cities," Haney said. "Racism in America will only get worse if we do not bring more jobs and better education to our cities," he added. Haney called on the voters to unite against Bush's presidency and to elect individuals who pledge to work for the benefit of citizens in urban areas. — JERSEY CITY

POP's peaceful protest in Newark

by Stacey Peterson

NEWARK — The march may have been peaceful but the message was hard and serious on May 5 as close to 150 people marched from the Federal Building to the Howard Savings Bank, protesting injustice. Organized by the People's Organization for Progress and led by POP head Larry Hamm and Charles Webster of the African Council of Teaneck, people carrying signs and shouting "No justice, no peace," "Condemn the verdict," and "From Teaneck to LA, no justice in the USA," marched in a steady stream in front of the Peter Rodino Federal Building, later taking to the center of Broad Street. Amid Tuesday's cold, people from organizations like the National Organization of Women, the Socialist Workers, a group of students from Fairleigh Dickinson University, Save Our Cities, Stand Up for Justice out of Elizabeth, and more stepped traffic as they made their way down the center of Newark protesting the acquittal of four white police officers in the beating of black motorist Rodney King. The men in blue were clearly visible, including Police Director William Celester, as several city police officers lined the street, stood outside of City Hall, and blocked off traffic. As the marchers passed City Hall, Newark Mayor Sharpe James emerged, stepped to the front of the line, shook hands with Hamm, and joined the march.

But, during speeches in front of the Howard Savings Bank, Mayor James would not say he was in support of the march, instead encouraging peaceful protests instead of some of the violent ones that took place over the days since the verdict. He said that the King incident was "a gross miscarriage of justice," and that it is opposed to any act of police brutality. "It could have been Sharpe James," he said. He encouraged people to join the Save Our Cities March on May 16 in Washington, DC, where this issue as well as crime, housing, unemployment, education, drugs, health, and others will be addressed. Hamm and Webster, with megaphone in hand, slammed the Reagan-Bush years which they said laid the groundwork for the injustices felt by the underclass, reminded people that inequality is going on throughout the country, particularly in New Jersey, and admonished the government for taking care of business everywhere except in the United States.

Hamm called the rioting a "rising up," adding that the oppressed are not going to take it anymore. "This is a righteous indignation about the grave injustice done to all of us," Hamm said, saying that they verdict was "unjust, immoral, and racist to the core."

He added, "People are rising up and saying enough is enough." Hamm said that he does not condone the violence that has taken place in Los Angeles and several other cities across the country, but stated, he does not condone racism and injustice.

Newark gets some Comic Relief

and Comedy Club. The performance, which helped to promote the May 13 comedy show, 8 p.m. at the Terrace Room, kicked off the committee's 1992 fundraising drive. The Newark efforts are in conjunction with the national "Comic Relief" show, airing May 16 on Home Box Office (HBO). Joining Mayor

James and the children are (l-r): Verna Morgan, committee member; James Felton, owner of Terminal "D"; James Ruffin; Mary Liz Kani, an HBO official; Claude Wallace, manager of the HHS Division of Community Health, and committee member Pablo Ortiz. For details, please call 201-733-5300.

Save our cities! march set for May 16

WASHINGTON, DC — Cities are continuing to mobilize for the Save our Cities! Save our children! march on Washington, DC on May 16. Several mayors from cities throughout the nation have endorsed the march and some will even take part in it, coming to Washington a day prior to the march to advocate for cities and children before their Congressional delegations on Capitol Hill.

The march itself will feature a rally and a program of speakers to include appropriate public officials and opinion leaders, national and regional activists, and ordinary citizens affected by the decay of the country's cities. The event will also feature national celebrities and top musical entertainment appropriate to the message and outreach of the march.

Targets of the march are: jobs; health; care; education; housing; crime; drugs; and a clean environment. As of March 25, More than 70 cities have mobilized for the march, with the District of Columbia, including 14 from New Jersey. For more information on the march please call 202-944-5092.

Teaneck residents rally for justice

by Wendi Dunlap

TEANECK — The community of Teaneck gathered in outrage May 2 over the acquittal of four white policemen charged with the beating of a black man in Los Angeles. About 150 people of various ethnic backgrounds, clustered tightly together in the steps of Teaneck's municipal building in order to hear criticism of the verdict

Black Churchmen set their priorities in wake of King trial verdict

by Stacey Peterson

NEWARK — Members of the North Jersey Black Churchmen outlined areas that they feel must be dealt with as they and other civic organizations wrestle with what to do after the acquittal of four white police officers in the beating of black motorist Rodney King.

During the May 5 meeting, members, led by Dr. Edward Verner, set aside their normal agenda and brought out points of concern for the community.

The Churchmen agreed that the following must be addressed:

- ◆ "Chaos or community." The underclass must be addressed.
- ◆ The county needs an urban agenda.
- ◆ Use the pulpit to encourage support among blacks, whites, and other minorities to effect change.
- ◆ Do all that can be done to "prevent moral rage." ◆ Go out and get new members into the church instead of waiting for people to come to them. ◆ "We're sitting on a powderkeg." Responsible entities like the black church must take the lead for change.

The group agreed that they must sit down again and discuss a straightforward and effective course of action stemming from a unified front. "As the black church, we stand in the forefront — the vanguard as far as the black community is concerned," Dr. Verner said at the beginning of the meeting. "If there is such a thing as one voice then it will be from the black church."

During the meeting, which lasted for about two and a half hours, several ministers, bishops, and church members of various faiths spoke on issues that they felt strongly about since the beating and the not guilty verdict.

One bishop continued to reiterate that the "what, why, and what can be done to keep this from happening again" must be outlined. "We're moving towards two societies — what are we going to do about it?" he said.

Many of the church people agreed that violence is not to be condoned, but admitted that it is one way that the underclass has always gotten attention. "Lawlessness is inexcusable but venting is necessary," said Bishop Williams.

He and others stated that it is important for minorities, but particularly blacks, to take back their communities through economics. Bishop Keiser continually encouraged productivity and selective purchasing in the community.

"We have to start making something," he said. "Teach people selective purchasing and we will be able to employ some of those people out there without hope."

Walter P. Swain earns posthumous humanitarian award from du Cret School of the Arts PLAINFIELD — Walter P. Swain, president of the Board of Trustees of du Cret School of the Arts until his death earlier this year and a long-time patron of the arts, will be honored with the du Cret's prestigious Humanitarian Award at commencement ceremonies Thursday.

May 21 at the school, 1030 Central Avenue, Plainfield. The event will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Swain's widow, Bernice, will accept the highly coveted award; Joseph Hadrich of Basking Ridge, the current president of the du Cret Board of Trustees, will give the commencement address.

This is the first time the school has bestowed its Humanitarian Award posthumously. Frank Palotico, director of du Cret, called Swain "a real champion of the school," noting that the late gallery owner often showcased the work of students and faculty members at Swain Galleries in Plainfield and graciously lent the school his expert advice on the arts.

In addition to receiving du Cret's Humanitarian Award in May, Walter Swain's life and memory will be celebrated in two other important events: On Sunday, May 17, at 2 p.m., du Cret School of the Arts will be the site of the first talk in the Walter P. Swain, Jr., Lecture Series. The debut lecture, on "Victorian Architecture," will be given by noted artist and former du Cret Humanitarian Award winner Harry Devlin. Swain Galleries are located in a restored, turn-of-the-century Victorian house located in the Crescent Area Historic District. The lecture series is being presented by the Crescent Area Neighborhood Association. On Sunday, May 31, at 4 p.m., the University Glee Club, of which Swain was a long-time member, will perform in concert at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church in Plainfield, where the honoree worshipped.

tradition of promoting art and artists is being carried on by the honoree's daughter Ann, the fourth generation to embrace the arts.

Originally schooled in electrical engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Swain was eventually drawn to the more people-oriented family art gallery. Founded in 1968 as Swain's Art Store by Philip Swain, the honoree's grandfather, it is the oldest retail business in Plainfield.

Besides serving as president of the Board of du Cret, Swain had been a member of the Plainfield Art Association, chairman of the Board of Trustees of Raritan Valley Community College (formerly Somerset County College), past president of the Plainfield Chamber of Commerce, and a member of the Board of Governors of Muhlentberg Regional Medical Center in Plainfield.

A deacon, elder and trustee of Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church, he was also a member of the University Glee Club in New York City for 47 years. "He loved the Glee Club," said Mrs. Swain. "It was a great part of his life." Swain also sang in the Oratorio Choir of Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church.

Coping

Dr. Charles W. Faulkner

She argued and he hit her

I saw it and still can't believe it. The obscure black male-female problem was exposed in all of its unpleasant glory. Here's what happened:

Many was unhappy with the way that her life was going. She was bored with her life, and tormented with her own personal insecurity. So she tore into Phil because he was ten minutes late getting home from work. She was completely out of control as she screamed and told Phil how much she hated his guts. "You are the cause of all of my problems. You are always late doing everything. You never will be any good. You are just like all black men. You're dirt (her voice got louder.) You're stupid. I don't know why I wasted my time fooling with you. Last summer you were late for dinner. Last month you forgot to pay the phone bill. You are always doing something dumb. You're really half a man."

Last sentence out of her mouth, Phil had punched her in the face and knocked her down. His manhood had been threatened, so now he was out of control and would have hurt her seriously if a neighbor hadn't restrained him.

This seems like the typical destructive cycle of black male-female relationships:

1) The black male, having been pushed aside and talked-down to for most of her life, has developed an emotional explosiveness. She is moody and short-tempered. She is an emotional powder keg, ready to explode at a moment's notice. She is somewhat spoiled, too, so whenever things don't go her way, however she doesn't get exactly what she wants and whenever she is disappointed, she attacks her mate with verbal abuse and disrespect. The idea is to hurt him emotionally, to abuse him, to insult him, to degrade him, and when she loses her temper, she is completely out-of-control, and doesn't care who is listening or observing. This serves to increase the degradation.

2) The black male, who is on the receiving end of abuse from all of society, has only his manhood as his limited basis for self-esteem. He has massive self-hatred, minimal self-confidence, a short emotional fuse, pent-up frustrations and an almost combative vindictiveness. He is a virtual walking time bomb looking for a target to blow up. He would prefer to detonate the society that has made him what he is. But he his lady attacks his manhood, he comes out swinging. He attacks in the tradition of a "real" man with his fists.

This cycle is one reason for the psychological destruction of the black male, the increasing violence in the home and the widening gap in the relationships at all levels between black males and females. In my next column, I will try to help us to solve this massive problem.

OPINION

Momentum, momentum, momentum!

The ramifications from the not guilty verdict of the four police officers in the Rodney King beating will not go away and neither should the angry voices of people who feel that justice was not carried out. Not to be redundant from last week's message, but this is just too important to let fall by the wastebasket.

Far too many times in our past, we have allowed the wrongdoers, the perpetrators of injustice, to get away with hurting us, beating us, disenfranchising us, keeping us on the outside, and stabbing us in the back while grinning in our faces. As one New Jersey civic leader said, "We are a very forgiving people." Well, African-Americans, minorities, and conscious others, must not forgive and forget. They must continue to keep this issue in the forefront. They must use this as a springboard to alert the not-so-conscious not only to the issue of racism and police brutality, but homelessness, poverty, lack of quality public education, unemployment, crime, drugs, and so many other factors facing the cities and the entire country.

See, for once, people in mainstream, Middle America have a chance to see just how wide the chasm has become between haves and the have nots. Don't let those 12 jurors fall when they say they "slept well at night. They never sleep well again. They are just part of the fuse that has ignited this powderkeg and the factions for change must keep the momentum for justice going. One day, we'd like to see a generation of our people live in a fair, just, equal society. Maybe one day, American will be the great democracy it was set up to be...

Commentary...

by Edward N. Long

There is a passage in the Constitution of the United States of America which reads in part "...with liberty and justice for all." After witnessing, via national TV, the beating of Rodney King by those who are employed to enforce the law and who were subsequently acquitted by a jury devoid of African-Americans in Simi Valley, California, I feel blown pharosically hollow. However, it has been evident that something like this would eventually happen if it is viewed from a historical perspective. The former President Richard M. Nixon used code words "Law and Order" to control and/or prevent African-Americans from attaining equality and participation in mainstream America. This was designed to mask his criminality. During his administration a law abiding African-American Security Guard, in the performance of his duties, reported a break-in to the Washington, D.C. Police Department who promptly arrested the person, the officers who led to Watergate, that African-American lost his job, and has been unable to be gainfully employed since. The last report was that he was arrested for shoplifting.

Quote of the Week

We weren't surprised by the verdict. How can a wolf guard a chicken coop? How can a racist system convict itself?

The Garden State Bar Association recently honored veteran lawyer, Raymond A. Brown of Montclair at its second annual scholarship dinner. That is commendable.

But it is regrettable many of Brown's legion of friends were not aware of the affair. Ray has had an army of admirers for many years and no distance is too far, no ticket too expensive and few other obligations so overwhelming they would not make every possible effort to spend an evening enjoying his wit and wisdom.

Raymond A. Brown is one of those special people who cross ethnic, professional, social and economic lines. He is and has always been a humanitarian and friend to rich and poor, old and young above being the lawyer you rush too when you're in deep trouble and your case demands the attention of the dean of the state bar.

Black New Jersey can never thank Ray Brown enough for his devotion to justice for minorities. We can never forget when he was a struggling Jersey City attorney handling cases that made headlines because they involved the violation of someone's civil and human rights before Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. popularized the phrase. Many will remember Mr. Brown as a man who often donated his services because clients were too poor to pay. He preceded the widespread use of legal aid and all the rest.

Now retired from the New Jersey National Guard where he held the rank of Adjutant and where his brash, clipped tongue and colorful language [making him] the fighting legal eagle who seems to be mellowing with maturity, giving new meaning to access and service in the Guard for thousands of minority weekend soldiers. As a result of his years of effort, many young Black males and females found this branch of military service a haven for earning extra money, getting additional job training and a guaranteed, comfortable retirement.

It's no wonder that every few years or so some group of lawyers somewhere in the United States honors Ray Brown for what he has done for colleagues and clients. For never being too tired or too busy to be a role model inside and outside the court room.

Over the years he has become a lawyer's lawyer and that is proven by the fact many young and old attorneys sit as observers in court rooms where he successfully argues the most difficult and complex of criminal cases. He is a master of court room techniques and it is an entertaining and interesting experience watching him in action.

Attorney Raymond A. Brown is truly one of New Jersey's most precious treasures and none of us should ever miss the opportunity to publicly thank him for making equal justice for all a lifetime priority that will benefit generations to come.

It should be noted that neither James H. Coleman, board chairman or Milton Harrison, current president and CEO of the Newark YMCA, can be blamed for the mishaps that have forced the once-venerable organization to file for Chapter 11 bankruptcy.

The future of the YMCA has been in doubt for years. The present management team inherited a legacy of runaway problems that according to a United Way spokesman, included "monetary mismanagement under the prior administration."

Newarkers were seen the rise and fall of the downtown Newark "Y."

We saw the dawning of a new day when the old buildings on Washington St. and Court St. were closed and programs merged in a sparkling new street building on Broad Street. Neighborhood youngsters were encouraged to make the trip downtown to use the new facilities that included spacious game rooms and a swimming pool.

The upper stories provided housing at an affordable level but as presidents and CEOs changed, so did the appearance of the building. Along with lax security, poor labor management styles and withdrawal of white members, including many executive types who worked in downtown offices and stores, there was a steady deterioration of the building, facilities and purpose.

The newcomers, president James Coleman and CEO Milton Harrison are striving hard to clear up the institution's negative image and poor reputation in the community. But they are doing this at a time when hundreds of similar programs are working well in the city and where the spirit of revival is flooding neighborhoods. A fact that will make their goal more difficult to reach no matter how well meaning their intent and important the purpose.

I know for sure at least one of the most recent presidents was a man who seemed to care more for his own egomaniacal than the "Y" movement. Perhaps one of his greatest disappointments was his inability to make inroads into Newark's corporate sector.

In addition to taking up residency in an exclusive Orange suburb, this guy insisted on being provided with a car and not just any car, but a Mercedes Benz, if you please. He also liked to travel — with the "Y" picking up the tab and liked to entertain a lot and expensively.

Protestors and those who questioned the "Christian spirit" of such high living, were immediately castigated as traitors, busy bodies and assorted levels of troublemakers and somehow managed to be whisked out of sight.

Some of the old board members who represented many of the funding resources seemed reluctant to rock the boat. Jerk this guy up and make him accountable. One by one some of the most ardent supporters drifted away, withdrew membership, financial support and began to focus their attention on other local programs.

Once all the fingers were pulled out of the dike a flood of problems including more than $1 million in outstanding bills, judgments, lawsuits and pending litigation threatened to drown an institution that found a home and a purpose in Newark for more than 100 years.

Charlie Bell won re-election to the Newark Board of Education with relative ease. But will he be so lucky in seeking the chairmanship of the Central Ward Democratic Committee?

The present chairman Saidi Nguvu will most certainly seek another term. That will put Central Newark Councilman George Branch squarely at the center of a controversy he does not need since he's certain to be a candidate for reelection in 1994.

As a Newark Housing administrator, Bell is well connected. Since Branch is also a housing authority employee he may find it difficult to run a dear ear to Charlie Bell who people identify with East Ward politics although he's a well-known throughout Newark and has a Central Ward address.

This will certainly be one of the real grassroots political agendas to watch.

She died when a President, after waging a racist campaign, does not consider it hypocrisy to attend an NAACP function and Sunday sermons at an African-American Church.

The Queen City, to bring it closer to home, is under siege. Crime runs rampant in our city and the criminal element operates with impunity. Drugs are sold openly and flagrantly and the police do absolutely nothing. They know where the drug infested areas are and who does the dealing. There are areas where residents are held hostage in their own neighborhood. Where are those empowered to ensure that there is "liberty and justice for all." African-Americans have received a wake up call. You have the power to make a change. Throw those out of office who deservingly use you. Exercise your power over the ballot. If your ballot does not mean anything then why do the Clinton's, the Brown's, the Harkin's, the Tonrises, the Mitchell's, the Miller's and every other politician beat a path to your door soliciting your assistance? WAKE UP African-Americans and march to the beat of your own drum.

sioned General Noriega's participation. Eventually, after ascending to the Presidency he, militarily, attacked Panama under the guise of ending a Dictatorship and friend to rich and poor, old and young above being the lawyer you rush too when you're in deep trouble and your case demands the attention of the dean of the state bar.

How does the media portray these incidents? The scenario is reversed the victim becomes the accused. The case in point, four Los Angeles Police Officers were on trial for the abuse of police powers for beating Rodney King and how does the media portray it? The Rodney King Case. Rodney King was not on trial. They should have focused on the real culprit, Chief Darryl Gates and his Blue Shirt Bunkies. One is reminded of Gernampy Nazi regime crimes against humanity, the US Government wasted no time in bringing those culprits to justice. The rationale was that those in power were obligated to exercise control over their subordinates. If that is true then Chief Darryl Gates set the tone and not exercise leadership control. Instead, he will receive and receive a pension, a portion of which comes from contributions from African-Americans taxes. Is that justice?

The Pastor of the Shiloh Baptist Church delivered a sermon Sunday entitled "The Death of a Nation" with the focus on America dying because the lack of moral, spiritual and human values. Agreement is shared on some points; however, the disagreement abounds in the fact that America is not dying. America is dead and has been for a long time. She died 29 years ago when she allowed assassins to murder President John F. Kennedy, the Reverend Martin Luther King, Jr. and Robert F. Kennedy, (Sirhan Sirhan, a person of color is imprisoned for the assassination of Robert F. Kennedy), and covered up the findings. She died when justice was denied a segment of her society. She died when she declared war and drafted the disenfranchised to fight while the privileged ran off to Canada and later granted amnesty.

Letter to the Editor...

Dear Editor:

The change of venue was only "an other" of the examples of how the "white power structure" manipulates a situation (system) to create the outcome "they" desire! But even this Most Powerful structure should have known the results of going so far from a trial area that would have generated a mixed (white as well as "black") pool of people for the jury, to a mostly white And more over being impacted with other people from their families... No Blacks to speak of! This for sure was a jury of peers... But only a jury of the policemen peers... NOT of Rodney King!

First of all the prosecutor should

NOT have permitted this change... And for sure not to such an UP FRONT Possibility biased area! What was Rodney King's team doing? One should NEVER give way something just because they may THINK they have all the cards! And even after the pool was set forth to the Prosecutor, he should have kept THE POOL (NO BLACKS!).

We of Color have no stake in this society (US). This is not of our choosing, but of our being systematically kept out of the main stream. We have been given lip service for as far back as I can remember. Nothing positive in this society is going on for the black man!

It just came out that we were

Setting the stage

given LIP service last year: At the time of the Rodney King incident, the Justice Dept. led us to believe they were going to investigate the incident... Now Today they (Justice Dept.) said they were going to get STARTED on the investigating of the Rodney King beating. The President said he would use what ever necessary to bring control to LA — I did NOT hear him say he would do what ever is necessary to bring about Justice for Rodney King. Why!

We are going to destroy our selves from within. We can go on around the world (Israel, Kuwait and Russia) spending Billions, And at the same time we are destroying our way of life: Since the start of the 1981 decade, we have been on a path to dismantle the "Good" life in the GOOD OLD USA. Given the rate of Federal Cuts: 75 percent cut off of housing programs, a great reduction in aid to educational assistance and the elimination of job programs.

"THE CURRENT SYSTEM HAS TO KNOW WHAT THE PROBLEM IS... THEN WHY ARE THEY NOT CORRECTING IT?" LEADERS GET IT TOGETHER, PLEASE, BEFORE IT IS TOO LATE!!!

Plainfield teacher joins 3-2-1 Contact Extra's show about sex and youngsters

NEW YORK — From MTV to magazine ads, from sitcoms to soap operas, preteens and children are bombarded with messages about sex. What do preteens really understand about puberty and sex? What do they need to know? what questions do they have about their own sexual development and how comfortable do they feel about asking them?

signed for children 8 to 12 and their parents, the one-hour program — and Extra edition of CTW's award-winning science series — premieres Wednesday, May 13 from 8-9 p.m. on PBS.

Parents waiting to have that "one big talk" may discover that by the time they get round to that conversation, it's already too late. Recent government studies report that by the 12th grade, more than half of teenagers say they have engaged in sexual intercourse. Since the 1970's, unintended pregnancies and sexually transmitted diseases, including AIDS, have been on the rise among adolescents.

"What Kids Want to Know About Sex and Growing Up" offers straightforward, understandable information about puberty, sexuality, and reproduction, including Q & A sessions between kids and sex educators Dr. Robert Selverstone and Rhonda Wise, who works with the Division of Recreation in Plainfield. Selverstone and Wise describe the maturation process with visual help from animation; the program addresses such concerns as physical and emotional development, masturbation, menstruation, intercourse, conception, peer pressure, responsibility, parenting, AIDS, and homosexuality.

Teenage hosts Stephanie Yu and Z Wright reflect on the bodily and mood changes children may be experiencing and emphasize the importance of asking questions to clear up confusion. In a segment about responsibility, they learn a little about what caring for a baby entails and discover how hard it is to look after even a "pretend" baby — a sack of flour — for a week.

While the youngsters wanted to know about getting one's period, penis size, how someone gets pregnant, and how to say "no" to peer pressure, the underlying quest was for reassurance that their experiences were natural and normal.

KUMON Math Center Opens in Plainfield

PLAINFIELD — The Plainfield Kumon Math Center will hold its open house on Friday, May 15 from 4 to 7 p.m. at the United Presbyterian Church of Plainfield, 525 East Front Street. The center will be operated by Pat Dawson, who is a certified instructor in the Kumon method and manager of the center.

The Kumon method of teaching is based on the philosophy that everyone can improve his/her math ability and thus unlock the door to reaching his/her limitless potential. It is a system of self-learning in arithmetic and mathematics based on the individual student's needs and ability. It gives students the opportunity to study, think and solve problems on their own; improves their overall scholastic abilities, and expands their potential for learning. Pre-school youngsters through adults can benefit from the program.

The Plainfield Kumon Math Center will be open from 4 - 7 p.m.

on Tuesdays and Fridays. Participants visit the center to spend quality time at the center studying, correcting errors, and receiving encouragement from the instructor. The program is designed so that the student will complete worksheets every day for about ten (10) to twenty (20) minutes. The exercises are timed and the student's goal is to achieve speed and accuracy in math, thus mastery of the skills at each level.

Kumon is not a quick fix, but is a method that guides the student step by step toward specific goals. The instructor, parents and students work together to develop the fullest potential of each individual student.

Parents interested in a program that will increase math competency and confidence, study habits and concentration should stop by and find out more about the Kumon method or call Pat Dawson at 908-753-4470.

Sign the world's largest postcard & become part of Olympic history

PLAINFIELD — Plainfield residents have a unique opportunity to add their best wishes to the 1992 U.S. Summer Olympic Team by signing a piece of the world's largest postcard during U.S. Olympic Spirit Week, May 11-17.

"During the week of the 11th, 28,000 post offices across the country will be bringing their communities together in an effort to raise funds and rally national support for U.S. Olympic hopefuls," Plainfield Postmaster Elwood Pryor said. "We're very excited about it here in Plainfield."

The focal point of U.S. Olympic Spirit week is a piece of a giant postcard featuring a good luck message to the athletes.

"For a one dollar contribution," said Pryor, "customers can support America's Olympic Team by signing pieces of the giant postcard. They also will receive two personal postcards pre-addressed to Olympic athletes, one to save as a souvenir, the other to send with personal greetings to

R. Kelly—taking his vibe from the streets to the top of the charts

PARAMUS — He's young, talented, handsome and currently tearing up the charts in a big way with his singles "She's Got That Vibe" and "Honey Love," both from his debut album Born into the 90's, which is currently top 10 on Billboard's "Top R&B Albums" chart.

R. Kelly (better known as Robert to his friends and family) will be the first to say that these are exciting and interesting times; but listening to his story one gets the distinct impression that the road R. Kelly traveled to reach this point in his destiny was paved with interesting, exciting and sometimes dangerous yet triumphant experiences.

Born into the harsh realities of urban life, R. Kelly grew up on the Southside of Chicago and like most young men in his neighborhood he spent a lot of time living and experiencing life on the streets. Armed with love and discipline parceled out from these very important females (his mother, grandmother and a high school music teacher), not to mention the luck of the gods, Kelly managed to incorporate the lessons of the street into his character, and not to become a character on the streets.

The best of those lessons and experience can be heard in Robert's music. "I try to write and sing about the things that happened in my life that at the time may not have seemed significant, but when I look back on them I realize how much they mean to me, how certain events and people have helped me to become the person I am." Songs such as Hanging Out and Keep It Street convey those experiences.

Often, people think that the streets will only lead to trouble, but R. Kelly is quick to stress that his streets actually helped nurture his talent and allowed him to make a living.

"I used to be a street singer," says Kelly. Singing down in the subways of Chicago, he was able to make enough money to support himself and help out his family, in addition to honing his craft as a performer. "The first time I performed in the subways was incredible. I went down to the subways on a bet from my friends who thought I wouldn't do it. As I began to sing, a crowd gathered and started throwing money in a box. Before long, I became a regular in the subway and my money box had to be changed to a money bucket."

R. Kelly has come a long way since his days in the subway. He gained national attention when he, along with his former group M.G.M., walked away as the big winner on

"Natalie Cole's Big Break." While winning "Big Break" brought R. Kelly to the door of musical stardom, when he opened it he found himself face-to-face with the ugly side of the business. Differences in opinion on the direction that the group should take brought about its demise. As fate would have it, however, the end of the group meant the beginning of R. Kelly's career. He met up with his current manager the same day that MGM broke-up and soon found himself producing for the likes of Gladys Knight, David Peaston, High Five and Billy Ocean.

Ask R. Kelly about his feelings on success and he'll tell you that he felt successful long before the Billboard charts and radio play. "Success isn't just what you have when you get there; it's also what you do to beat the odds. Every time you overcome an obstacle, every time you keep pushing in the face of defeat you chalk-up another success."

Angela Boffill to appear at Club Bene

SOUTH AMBOY — Singer, songstress, Angela Boffill, will be appearing in concert at the Club Bene Dinner Theatre for one night only, May 16 at 10 p.m.

Just a few of her LP's include Angie, Angel of the Night, Let Me Be the One, Teaser, Tell Me Tomorrow and Intuition, just to name a few.

Some of her popular singles are Too Tough, I Just Wanna Stop, For You and I, Everlasting Love, with Peabo Bryson, You're A Special Part of Me, with Johnny Mathis, and many more.

For ticket information call 908-727-3000.

Black Churchmen set their priorities

Another man stated that this verdict is indeed a "wake up call" to a lot of blacks. He said that a class of people have developed who do not feel as if they have any hope. He added that this case serves to remind the few that have a bit more than others, that they "haven't gotten as far away as they thought."

He suggested that the factors that have caused these people to lose hope must be addressed, saying that one can take a church-going, law-abiding citizen, surround them with certain types of situations, and they will react in a way that is not seen as normal in the way normality is established by society.

"After someone is deprived, you'd be surprised at what they'd do," he said.

Detective Larry Brown of the Newark Police Department said that the department and Director William Celestere are "very concerned" about what happened in Los Angeles and are hoping the black church can help "maintain order and address issues."

"We realize that King is one straw of many," he said. "We're working to become more community oriented and hope the church will help us."

The Churchmen will be putting together a formal plan of action in the coming days.

Behind-the-scenes

by Lisa Collins

CULVER CITY, CA — The War Was On: It was a hellish week in the City of Angels upon the exonerated of four white police officers in the beating of Rodney King. But before, let us to what was going on behind-the-scenes in the entertainment community, I want to say that this was a police issue. Most every black male in Los Angeles has had a Rodney King experience. For decades the police have terrorized LA's black community. Finally, there was documented proof. A not guilty verdict was tantamount to a declaration of war, and those most often subject to the abuse took to the streets. In the words of one gangbanger, "the war is on." Filmmaker John Singleton ("Boyz n' the Hood") was among the first to forecast gloom from the Sini Valley courtroom. Singleton and Spike Lee left the courthouse enraged. "The writing has been on the walls for the last five years," actor Wesley Snipes said, in a gathering of entertainers who'd come together in the wake of the crisis. Snipes was victimized by LAPD officers when they stopped him for no apparent reason last year. Handcuffed, thrown to the ground — a gun at his head, Snipes was humiliated to find that the fact he was a movie star had not made a difference. He, along with Blair Underwood — (who'd had a similar experience) — and other young black entertainers called for a press conference to call attention to the matter last year.

Last week's violence erupted during filming of Robert Townsend's "Meat Man," featuring Bill Cosby, James Earl Ray, model-actress Beverly Johnson, and members of Another Bad Creation. Shooting in downtown LA, was suspended. So too was the taping of "Up All Night," a new pilot/feature starring Pat LaBelle. Among other cancellations were a series of dates by Bill Cosby, Phyllis Hyman and the Second Annual production of "Divas Simply Singing." Magic was the honorary chair of the event, which featured performances by Marilyn McCoo, Stephanie Mills, Marla Gibbs, Dionne Warwick, Teena Marie, Monie Love, Mary Wilson, and organizer Cheryl Lee Ralph.

Doing The Right Thing: One actor (Gregory Allen Williams) came to the aid of a Korean who had been pulled from his car at an intersection, and is credited with saving the man's life. Edward James Olmos ("American Beauty") played a lead role in clean-up efforts throughout the riot-savaged city. ...Smbad volunteered for the same while also offering his services in getting food to people who were left without. (Most stores in the community were burned down. Buses aren't running, and many have no way to get food). Hanner called for an end to the violence while attending a relief concert in Kentucky...Other celebrities including Anjelica Huston, Sean Penn, Debbie Allen and husband Norm Nixon, Marty Rich, and Bill Duke gathered on a Burbank soundstage to do and say what they could. Former LA Law star Jimmy Smits uttered an appeal in Spanish to Latino viewers. "We need more intellect," director-choreographer Debbie Allen said, committing $10,000 "to reconstructing the library that was burned down."

Over the airwaves celebrities made appeals for peace and volunteered their services and resources to rebuilding Los Angeles. Jody Watley and her steady Andre Cymone issued a challenge to record producers to put back some of profits if they'd been beset with into the community. Holly Robinson appealed for peace. Rosanne and Tom Arnold, Whoopi Goldberg, and Kadeem Hardison took part in a live broadcast from Power 106. But no one showed more heart than Arsenio Hall, who was all over the place. One moment, playing with children at a shelter set up for those who'd lost their homes, and the next, playing disc jockey at popular Los Angeles radio station. One looter called expressing regret for what he'd done and wanting to return it. After expressing a fear of being prosecuted, Hall said him, "just bring it to Power 106, and I'll return it for you."

by community leaders and politicians.

"Two years ago I was a victim," shouted Phillip Pannell, Sr., father of the Phillip Pannell, Jr., a young black teenager who was shot in the back and killed by Officer Gary Spath, April 10, 1990.

Spath was acquitted from the charge of reckless manslaughter by an all white jury February 11, resulting in statewide protest.

"There is no justice in this country for people of color. It was the Spath trial all over again," Pannell cried.

Both the Spath and the King trials were made up of predominantly white juries.

Speakers at the rally included Robert Robinson, president of the Bergen County Chapter of the NAACP, New Jersey State Assemblywoman Loretta Weinberg (D-Bergen), and community activist Reverend Herbert Daughtry.

The police "have to stand up against violence and lawlessness wherever they see it. Even among their own ranks," Weinberg said.

While addressing the need for justice, Daughtry was confronted by an angry Jewish club member for the need to also speak out on the murder of Yanki Rosenberg.

Rosenbaum was a white rabbinical student murdered by a group of black youths in apparent retaliation for the accidental death of a black child by a white Jewish driver in the Crown Heights section of Brooklyn. The death ignited civil disturbances in that area last summer.

In response, Daughtry said that he could not deal with every specific issue of injustice.

"We can't find ways to separate us. We have to find ways to bring us together," added Weinberg.

The Tecneck community has made several efforts to quell tensions in light of the Pannell and King incidents. They include:

- The NAACP Youth Council of Bergen County is organizing a Student Police Patrol Committee for the purpose of delivering justice to those minorities who are victims of police brutality.

- Hackensack High School has arranged a panel of students to periodically meet with city officials to discuss issues concerning the youth.

- The Alpha Kappa Alpha, Delta Sigma Theta sororities and Omega Psi Phi fraternity Greek letter organizations of Bergen County along with the Coalition of Black Churches, NAACP, Rainbow Coalition, the Urban League, YOUSA, and other county associations are working on a newsletter to distribute throughout the community. One focus of the newsletter will be youth programs.

"This is defining moment in America," Daughtry said.

Karenga, Mohammed, Butts, address crime and black male, May 31

NEWARK — Dr. Maulana Karenga, Imam W. Deen Mohammed, and Rev. Dr. Calvin Butts will be on hand May 31 to address "Crime and the African-American Male II" at the Quality Inn.

The event is sponsored by the African-American Islamic Institute International and will include African performing arts, vendors, jazz, a choral ensemble and more from 3 to 9 p.m.

Dr. Karenga, chairman of the Department of Black Studies at California State University, Long Beach, is very well known for his work on multiculturalism as well as the installment of the Kwanzaa holiday celebration.

Dr. Butts is the pastor of the Abyssinian Baptist Church in New York City and is very active in programs for children, health in the black community, education, as well as the overall enhancement of society through the church.

Mohammed, Muslim American Spokesman, is one of the most active and notable Muslim leaders in the world, and a member of the World Supreme Council of Mosques.

For more information call 201-456-2120 or 201-676-9618.

U.S. Olympians competing at the upcoming Barcelona Games."

Plainfield's piece of the postcard will be on display and available for signing daily from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday and Saturdays 8:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. The end of this signing is Saturday, May 16, 1992.

In July, when Olympic spirit is high and the athletes are preparing to leave for Barcelona, Plainfield's piece of the card, along with the other 27,999 pieces will be assembled for the "America's salute to Team USA" celebration in Washington, D.C. The fully-assembled card, larger than three football fields and bearing hundreds of thousands of signatures, will convey the best wishes of Americans to their team as it prepares to leave for the summer games.

"The Postal Service is an organization that touches all Americans," said Postmaster Pryor. "It is proud to sponsor the Olympics, a competition that touches the heart of all Americans."

He stated that there are "Rodney Kings" throughout New Brunswick, Teaneck, Plainfield, and other cities in New Jersey citing the cases of Shaun Porter, Tasha Mayse, Phillip Pannell, Santana Hannah, and countless others.

"We weren't surprised by the verdict," Hamm continued, "How can a wolf guard a chicken coop? How can a racist system convict itself?"

He supported a bill just introduced to Congress by Maxine Waters calling for police brutality to be made a federal crime and called for America to establish an urban agenda if it does not want to see similar "uprisings." He demanded that President Bush and Congress cut military spending, quit policing the world, and "stop wasting millions of dollars on stealth bombers that can't fly."

"If we have billions for the Soviet Union, then we should have billions to save our cities," he said.

Hamm stated that blacks must not fall for complacency and apathy.

"We call on you not to go back to sleep, he said, "we must agitate, agitate, agitate."

"This is a sad time in America and it didn't start last week in L.A.," Webster said. "It started 300 years ago when they tore us from our mother land and brought us here against our will."

He too, encouraged action from the people.

"Our mothers and fathers have become complacent — the system has lulled them to sleep," Webster said.

He told the people not to "settle," and stated that he not only wanted the four officers who were tried to be convicted, but the near 15 who stood around and watched as King was beaten.

"Don't go home and feel safe — no one is safe," he said.

Ewuare Osayande, a student leader at Fairleigh Dickinson University, also encouraged people to keep fighting for rights.

"Power concedes nothing without demand," he said, adding that the movement needs people who are willing to fight.

"I'm fed up being kicked in the back, Kicked in the rear, shot in the back — we demand justice and we will take justice," Osayande said.

He also encouraged people to love each other and stop disrespecting each other.

The speakers supported the Save Our Cities, Save Our Children March taking place on May 16 in Washington, DC. Buses will be leaving from Newark. For more information call 201-642-0181.
